IELTS Speaking Part 1

Here are my sample answers for the 8 questions in the video lesson:

Do you like sport?

No, I'm not really a sports fan. I like swimming, but I don't get much time to go these days because I'm too busy with work.

Do you think it's better to watch sports or play them yourself?

It's much healthier to play sports than to watch them, but it can be fun to be a spectator and support a team or a particular athlete.

Why do you think some sports are so popular?

Well, if I take football as an example, I think the fans like the feeling of winning and sharing an exciting experience with their friends and other fans.

Do you think children should all have to do sports at school?

Yes, I think children should all be encouraged to try a variety of sports, firstly because they need the exercise, and secondly because children need to have fun.

What's your favourite colour? Why?

My favourite colour is blue because it's the colour of the sky on a nice day.

Do different colours have different meanings in your country?

Yes they do. For example, red is usually used to mean danger, and green is always the colour we use for anything related to the environment or nature.

Do you think that colours can affect the way people feel?

Yes, colours do seem to affect our emotions. Bright colours like yellow or red can make us feel happier or more active, for example.

Do you wear different coloured clothes now compared to when you were a child?

I can't really remember. I probably wore much more colourful clothes back then, because children usually like fun clothes rather than boring dark colours.

IELTS Speaking Part 2: describe a person

Describe a person you know who does something well.
You should say

who this person is how you know this person
what they do well and explain why you think this person is so good at doing this.

Here's my example description from the video lesson. It took me exactly 2 minutes, and I simply followed the points above. I tried to use some of my 'theme' language and a good example to demonstrate the 'hard-working' theme.

I'm going to describe a friend of mine called James. James is an actor by profession. He's in his thirties I think. He's tall, he's about my height, with dark hair and a friendly face; he's always smiling and he cheers me up whenever I see him.

I met James in… at university. He was my next-door neighbour in my hall of residence in the first year of university. So on that first day when we were moving in to our rooms, James introduced himself to me and we struck up a conversation, and got to know each other then, and we became good friends.

James, as I said, is an actor, and I think he's really good at that. He studied drama at university, where I met him, and since then he's been working in theatre, he's done some small independent films, and he's trying to get his break in television or in more popular, mainstream films. And I think he'll do it, because for me he seems… when I've been to see him in theatre productions or I've seen the short films that he's been in, he seems to be a really good actor to me.

Why I think he's good: well, I think it comes from his work ethic. He's a really hard worker, he's really persistent. He always said he wanted to be a successful actor; it's not an easy profession to become successful in, but he has persisted, he's really intense, he studies each role very carefully, he gets into character. I remember, for example, not being able to talk to him for about a week before one of his acting jobs because he was 'in character' - he didn't want to lose focus. So he's really intense, and that's what I think makes him a great actor, and why I think he'll be successful.

Notes:

The best vocabulary is highlighted in bold, italic writing. I think the examiner would be particularly impressed by "less common" items such as:

struck up a conversation

- get his break in television (meaning 'get his first opportunity')

mainstream films

- his work ethic
- he has persisted
- he's really intense
- he gets into character

There is a lot of 'content', but I don't worry about linking. Your focus should be on the task: describing the person using good ideas and vocabulary. Examiners are not impressed by memorised linking phrases!

I wasn't thinking about grammar, but I naturally used a variety of verb tenses: past, present, present perfect, and future tenses are all used correctly where necessary.

Finally, this was my first attempt. The next step is to go back to my 'theme' vocabulary for 'hard- working' and see if I can improve the description.

If I did the description a second time, I would try to add words / phrases like:

- motivated
- determined to succeed
- he always sees things through
- he likes to challenge himself
- he has a magnetic personality

IELTS Speaking Part 2: describe a place

Describe a river, lake or sea which you like.

You should say

what the river, lake or sea is called where it is what the land near it is like and explain why you like this river, lake or sea.

Here's my example description from the video lesson. It took me exactly 2 minutes, and I simply followed the points above. I've highlighted the good language that I think an examiner would notice.

I'm going to describe the best known river in England, the river Thames.
The river Thames is in the south of England, and it's famous because it flows right through the centre of London. It goes winding through all of the most iconic, famous tourist attractions and landmarks of the city. For example, it goes past the London Eye, the Houses of Parliament, with Big Ben, and it goes under Tower Bridge, probably the most famous bridge in London.
So the land around this river, or on either side of this river is hectic, thriving, city-centre London. It's right in the heart of the city, and of course it's a cosmopolitan mix of cultures, business, tourism all around. It's where everyone goes to do sightseeing in the centre of the capital, and it's got a lot of the history and heritage of London based around that area, in close proximity to the river itself.
The reason I like this river, the river Thames, is because it's such an iconic location. It's a great… it's a backdrop to these great landmarks of the city: the historic buildings and famous tourist sites in the city. And I've got good memories of being there on a New Year's Eve one year recently. In London, New Year's Eve celebrations are all focused on the river, with the river and some of the landmarks as the backdrop to a big fireworks show. And so the river's all lit up, and there's a spectacular fireworks display put on, and lots of tourists and local people all watch it there together. That was really an unforgettable experience, and the river was central to it.

- Notice that here is a lot of 'content', but I don't worry about linking. Your focus should be on the task: describing the place using good ideas and vocabulary. Examiners are not impressed by memorized linking phrases.
- With regard to grammar, I'm not trying to use any 'special' structures. My focus is on answering the question. But of course we should try to avoid making grammar mistakes!
- Notice also that I tell a story in the last paragraph. This helps me to keep speaking for the full 2 minutes.

IELTS-Simon's video course

Here's the second question from the video lesson:

Describe a restaurant that you enjoyed going to.
You should say
where the restaurant was why you chose this restaurant what type of food you ate and explain why you enjoyed eating in this restaurant.

Here's my example description from the video lesson. Again, it took me exactly 2 minutes, and I followed the points above. I've highlighted the language that I think an examiner would like.

I'm going to describe a restaurant that I went to quite recently for the birthday party of a friend of mine.
The restaurant that we went to was right in the heart of London, overlooking the river Thames.
It was quite near to Tower Bridge, the famous bridge in London, and we had a great view from our vantage point above the river; we had a great view of all the famous London landmarks in that area.
My friend chose the restaurant because of this location, because of the great backdrop; out of the window of the restaurant we could see all of these iconic places in London, and he thought it would be a good place to have a celebration, a place that would be memorable for everybody.
But also, we'd heard that the food in this restaurant was delicious, and that the staff were warm and welcoming, and the service and the quality was all round really good.
The type of food that we ate there, well, it was a fusion restaurant I think they called it, which meant that there was a variety of food choices from all over the world. There were Mexican food choices, Mediterranean, Persian, but also hamburgers and pizzas, that kind of thing. I think I actually had a pizza with various toppings on it myself, and it was really nice - it was a fantastic meal.
The reason I enjoyed eating in this restaurant: Firstly, it was a great chance to get together with friends and chat about what we'd been up to, and catch up with some of my good friends. But also, the restaurant itself really did make the night special. The service was fantastic, the waiters and the staff really made us feel at home, they were thoughtful and attentive to all of our needs, and we were really surprised at the end when they brought us a cake to celebrate my friend's birthday.

Note:

The description above is not true. I invented it to show that we can use our 'theme' ideas and even adapt ideas that we have prepared for a different question.

Notice also that I'm speaking naturally, so it's often difficult to tell when my sentences begin or end because the ideas flow and merge together. This is normal in spontaneous, spoken language.

IELTS Speaking Part 2: describe an object

Describe something that you would like to own.
You should say

what it is where you have seen it what you would use it for and explain why you would like to own this object.

Here's my example description from the video lesson. It took me exactly 2 minutes, and I followed the points above.

Note: you'll see that in paragraph three I jumped to the last point by mistake, and then went back to the point about "how I would use it" in paragraph four. But this doesn't affect the quality of my answer.

I've highlighted the good language that I think an examiner would notice.

I'm going to talk about a watch that I would like to own. It's one of these new smartwatches, a new type of watch that has all the functions and features of a smart phone, of a mobile phone, but of course you wear it on your wrist, so it's even more portable.

And this is a new fashion accessory these days, a new gadget, that I've seen advertised everywhere: on billboards in the city centre, on TV adverts, and I've seen these watches in person, in 'real life', in various department stores that I've been to when out shopping. And I'm not sure which brand I would buy, but I've seen the various brands, and maybe the most famous one at the moment is the Apple Watch.

The reason I'd like one of these watches is because you can synchronise it with your computer and phone, and so you've got all your contacts, your photos and especially calendar notifications right there on your wrist, and you're carrying it round with you.

I think it would be particularly convenient for me to be able to organise my life using one of these watches, and check my appointments and work commitments at a glance, just looking at my wrist. I think it'd even be good maybe for health reasons, because apparently you can track your exercise goals, even things like the number of steps you're taking every day. So that might be quite interesting.

So the reason that I'd like one of these watches, as I said, would be the features and functions that I've just mentioned. I think these watches are really practical. It's just as good as a phone in terms of the technology, but it's even more portable; really they're the ultimate in portable devices. And I'm a fan of gadgets, and this one looks really stunning too. Those are the reasons why I think it would be nice to have one.

Here's the second question from the video lesson:

Describe something old that you own which is special to you.
You should say

what this possession is how long you have had it where it came from

and explain why this possession is special to you.

Here's my example description from the video lesson. Again, it took me exactly 2 minutes, and I followed the points above. I've highlighted the language that I think an examiner would like.

Notice that I gave a long example, or 'story' in this description (highlighted in green). This story helped me to keep talking for the full 2 minutes.

I'm going to describe an old wristwatch that I inherited from my grandfather. So it's a family heirloom, it's an antique watch, and it's really a simple, classic old watch with a leather strap, a white face, and a gold edge around it.

And I've had it for the last 10 years, I think it is, since my grandfather gave it to me. But it's been in the family for several generations before that.

In fact, I think it came originally from my great-grandfather, because his name is engraved on the back of the watch face. So perhaps it was a gift that he received from an employer, or a friend, or another family member. We're not really sure, but he had it originally, and then passed it down to my grandfather, and now it's obviously mine.

The reason it's special, then, is because of this sentimental value that this watch has. As I said, it's a family heirloom, it's probably the only antique, really old possession that I've got that reminds me of my grandfather, and it brings back happy memories.

For example, I remember when my grandfather was helping me to learn to tell the time when I was a child. Because his watch had such a simple, clear clock face, it was very easy for me to understand what he was talking about, when he showed me how the big hand was for the minutes, and the shorter, small hand on the watch was for the hours. So I remember him teaching me to tell the time, and testing me with different times to see if I understood.

I also like the watch's stylish, elegant design; it's very simple, it's just a classic, timeless look, and it's really durable and resilient; I think it's so well-made that I'll be able to hand it down to the next generation when I'm older.

Note:
The description above is not true. I invented it to demonstrate the use of our 'theme' ideas and our prepared example.

Finally, notice that I'm not worrying about 'linking' phrases at all. I'm focusing on vocabulary: good ideas, and lots of detail.

IELTS Speaking Part 2: describe an event

Describe a sports event that you enjoyed watching.
You should say

what event you watched where you were who you watched it with and explain why you enjoyed watching it.

Here's the answer that I gave in the lesson. I've highlighted the best vocabulary.

I'm going to describe what I think was the most memorable event in recent years that I remember, which was the London 2012 Olympic Games. This was a spectacular festival of sport over the course of several weeks here in England, and I think it was a once-in-a-lifetime experience for us to have the Olympic Games in our own country.

I was unfortunately at home watching most of the Olympics on television. I didn't manage to go down to London to see any of the events in person, but I enjoyed them all on TV at home, in my own house, or sometimes with friends or family at their houses. And I do remember the events themselves, though, were in all different places across London, mainly at the Olympic Park area, in the main stadium or the various other smaller stadiums for the different events, like the swimming, the basketball etc., and I watched various of these different events when they were on television.

As I said, I was watching at home, usually on my own or with family or occasionally with friends. I remember, for example, watching the 100 metres sprint race, which is probably considered to be the most important or the most famous event in the Olympic Games; we often call it the "blue riband" event, and there was a lot of hype and anticipation surrounding the 100 metres at the London Olympics because everyone wanted to see whether Usain Bolt would win again, or whether anyone would be able to beat him.

So I enjoyed this event, the London Olympic Games, because I think it was an unforgettable experience to see it in my own country. There were some great performances and victories by the athletes, and I enjoyed every minute.

Notes:

- The section highlighted in green is my example or 'story'. This example helped me to keep talking and add some interesting detail to my description.
- No description will ever be perfect, but the important thing is to try to include some of the good vocabulary that you have prepared. 3/10/16 16:29

Describe a concert or musical event in your country.
You should say

who the musicians are where the concert is held what type of music is played and explain why people attend this musical event.

Here's the answer that I gave in the lesson. I've highlighted the best vocabulary.

I'm going to describe a concert that I've actually been to, that takes place here in Manchester, where I live. The musicians who perform this concert are classical musicians; it's an orchestra called the Hallé orchestra, which is obviously made up of the conductor, the string instruments, like violins, the percussion, the woodwind instruments, the brass instruments etc.

And these musicians play in a concert hall, a venue called the Bridgewater Hall, here in Manchester, which is a purpose-built concert hall, by which I mean that it was designed specifically for music. The sound acoustics are really good in the concert room, and the lighting, the stage etc., they were all built specifically for music.

The type of music that you would expect from an orchestra would normally be classical music. But this particular concert, that I think they put on once a year, is a bit more popular or mainstream because the orchestra plays theme music from famous films, the soundtracks from films. And most of them are very popular, well-known Hollywood films like E.T., Indiana Jones, Jurassic Park, the James Bond films, that kind of thing.

And this is why people attend, because we all know, or most of us know, the music from those films, and it's amazing to hear a full orchestra playing these songs, these pieces of music in a live venue. The sound quality is fantastic, and to hear these pieces of music loud and live is really wonderful. I, for example, was particularly blown away by the E.T. soundtrack, which is a really emotional piece of music when you hear it, especially in a live venue like that.

Notes:
- Again, I included as much good vocabulary as I could.
- I also missed a few good phrases that I wanted to include e.g. the atmosphere was electric, it exceeded my expectations.
- I had enough to say this time, and didn't need to give a long example or story.

Finally, here are some other "describe an event" ideas from my blog www.ielts-simon.com

Describe a family celebration that you remember.
You should say

what you were celebrating who was present
what you and your family did to make the celebration special and why you enjoyed the occasion.

Here's the sample answer from my blog. Can you improve this description with some good words and phrases from the video lesson?

- I'm going to describe my sister's wedding day, which took place a few years ago in the town where I grew up. For my sister it was the biggest and most important day of her life.

- I think there were around 100 people at the marriage ceremony, which was held in a church. Even more people came to the party, or the wedding reception as we call it, after the ceremony. Of course, most members of my family were there, as well as the groom's family and a collection of the bride and groom's friends and colleagues.

- To make the celebration special, we did what families normally do. My mother made sure that the church and the reception venue were nicely decorated - there were flowers everywhere! Obviously we all dressed for the occasion, and there were bridesmaids, gifts, a huge wedding cake, and so on.

- I enjoyed the occasion because it was great to see my sister so happy on her big day. The ceremony was perfect, and we all had a fantastic time at the reception. It's rare for me to see all of my family and friends together in one place, so that's probably what made the day so memorable for me.

Some ideas for the "describe a festival" topic:

A common topic for the short presentation (IELTS Speaking Part 2) is "describe an important festival in your country".

My advice is to look for a description of your festival on Wikipedia. Copy the best parts of the description and make small changes if necessary. As an example, I've copied a short description of Christmas from Wikipedia.

Christmas:

Christmas is an annual holiday that, in Christianity, commemorates the birth of Jesus Christ.

Popular customs of the holiday include gift-giving, music, an exchange of greeting cards, church celebrations, a special meal, and the display of various decorations; including Christmas trees, lights, nativity scenes, and holly. In addition, Father Christmas (known as Santa Claus in some areas) is a popular figure in many countries, associated with the bringing of gifts for children.

Over the Christmas period, people decorate their homes and exchange gifts. In some countries, children perform plays re-telling the events of the Nativity, or sing carols that reference the event. Christmas, along with Easter, is the period of highest annual church attendance.

A special Christmas family meal is an important part of the celebration for many, and what is served varies greatly from country to country. In England and countries influenced by its traditions, a standard Christmas meal includes turkey, potatoes, vegetables, sausages and gravy, followed by Christmas pudding, mince pies and fruit cake.

Try using these ideas (or your own festival ideas) to answer the question below.

Describe a festival that is important in your country.
You should say

when the festival occurs what you do during it what you like or dislike about it and explain why this festival is important.

IELTS Speaking Part 2: describe an activity

Describe something healthy you enjoy doing.
You should say

what you do
where you do it who you do it with

and explain why you think doing this is healthy.

Here's the answer that I gave in the lesson. I've highlighted the best vocabulary.

I'm going to describe a really healthy activity that I do, currently, which is swimming. I used to swim a lot when I was younger, but I've recently taken it up again, and I go a couple of times a week now.

I go swimming in a gym that I joined, which has a nice swimming pool. I tried going to my local public pool, but it was too busy and you couldn't really swim up and down in lanes there. So, I found a gym that has a pool, and it's usually quite empty, and I can have a lane to myself and swim up and down.

As I said, I do this hobby or activity alone. I don't go there with anyone; it's a solitary sport really, and I'm doing it for my own health reasons. Obviously, of course, there are other people in the pool when I'm there; sometimes you have to share a lane with another person or a couple of people. But, basically, I'm in there, focused, on my own, concentrating on my own swimming stroke and technique, and trying to improve my endurance and stamina as well.

And the reason I think this is a healthy sport… well, I think it's widely accepted that swimming is really healthy. It's a good all-over body workout; it's great cardiovascular exercise; it's a low-impact sport, so you're not expected to get any injuries as you might do if you were running, where there's impact on the joints - with swimming you don't have that. So I think it's really good for the body, but it's also good for the mind. When I get into the swimming pool, as soon as I hit the water it clears my mind; I'm focused only on one thing, which is my stroke, my technique, the breathing - it makes you think about your breathing as well, which is good. And I think it rejuvenates and reinvigorates you to be in the water. It's a really relaxing experience.

Here's the 'chess' description from one of my blog lessons, with the good vocabulary highlighted as usual.

Describe an indoor game that you enjoyed as a child.
You should say

what the game was where you played it who played this game with you and explain why you enjoyed it.

As a child I enjoyed playing chess. I think chess is probably the best known board game in the world. It's a game for two players, and the aim is to defeat the other player by taking his or her pieces and eventually trapping his King. This final move is called checkmate.

I remember that it was a classmate of mine at primary school who first taught me to play chess. He had a small, portable chess set, and once I knew how each piece moved, we started playing at break and lunch times; we played in our classroom or outside on the school playground. Later my parents bought me my own chess set as a birthday present so that I could play at home.

I taught my younger brother to play, and at some point I joined the school chess club. There I had the chance to hone my skills against some of the older pupils, and in my final year of primary school I made it onto the school team. There were five of us on the team, and we competed against children from other primary schools in the same town.

I liked playing chess because I enjoyed the challenge of thinking ahead and trying to outwit my opponent. I was probably seven or eight years old when I started playing, and it seemed like a very mysterious and intellectual game at that time. Also, although I loved winning, chess taught me to learn from my losses and to congratulate the person who had beaten me.

Note: It would be nice to add an example or story to the end of this description.

IELTS Speaking Part 2: describe your favourite

Describe a song or piece of music that you like.
You should say

what type of music it is where you first heard it who performs it and explain why you like this song or piece of music.

Here's the answer that I gave in the lesson. I've highlighted the best vocabulary.

I'm going to describe one of my favourite pieces of music, which is the theme music from the James Bond films. This is the soundtrack that begins every one of these James Bond films, and you hear the instruments straight away - it's an instrumental piece of music; there's no singing, there are no lyrics, it's just orchestra with electric guitar, and it begins every one of the James Bond films.

So the first time I heard this soundtrack was probably when I was a child and I watched my first ever James Bond film on television, and I was immediately struck by the music, how impressive it was and how it gets you excited before the film's even begun. The spectacular opening sequences that always begin any James Bond film, matched with this iconic music, are really exciting and memorable.

This is performed, obviously, by an orchestra, but as I said, it incorporates electric guitar and some drums as well. So it's a mix of popular and classical I'd say. I'm not sure who composed it, but I imagine any orchestra can play it.

The reason I like this music then, is because of the expectation it creates at the beginning of a James Bond film. You know that you're about to watch something special when you hear the first few notes of this soundtrack, of the theme music. It creates an expectation of adventure, mystery, excitement; I think it's really dramatic and powerful to hear this music at the beginning of the film, and they always match it with a spectacular opening sequence, and I think you're already on the edge of your seat before the film's even begun because it's a really special beginning to hear this music before the film gets going.

Describe a book that you enjoyed reading.

You should say

what the book was about how you found out about it why you chose to read it and explain why you enjoyed reading this book.

I'm going to describe a book that I really enjoyed reading recently. The name of the book was 'Mindset'. It's a non-fiction book and the author is called Carol Dweck. I'm not sure how to pronounce her surname properly, but she's a psychology professor and so the topic of this book was related to personality and development and motivation. In particular, she was writing about people's own personal views regarding ability. Some people, according to this author, believe that ability is innate - you're born with it, you have a talent that you can't change. Other people, on the other hand, believe that abilities can be improved through gradual hard work, and this is the area of personality that she's looking at. So she divides the two types of people into people with a 'fixed mindset' and other people with a 'growth mindset'; that's why the name of the book is 'Mindset'. These two mindsets are about whether you believe that our traits are fixed or, on the other hand, you think that we can grow and develop our talents through hard work.

I found out about the book from a friend who'd read it, who recommended it, said it was really interesting.

And I chose to read it because I thought, well, this could help me with my job, with my own aims or goals in life, and I'm interested in that kind or area, psychology, anyway.

And I really enjoyed reading the book because it did open my eyes to motivation and people's growth and development. I found it really informative, fascinating and even inspiring to see how we can improve ourselves.

Note: As you can see, I spent most of the time describing the book, and I covered the other 3 points quite quickly. It's fine to answer in this way - you don't need to say an equal amount for each point; in fact, the points are there to guide you, but it isn't compulsory to cover them all.

Finally, here is the answer for the "favourite film" topic that I covered on my blog:

Describe a film that you would like to see in the future.
You should say

what the film is called what it is about how you heard about this film and explain why you would like to see it.

I'm going to talk about a film that I'd like to see when it comes out later this year. It's the new James Bond film, and I saw in the news that it's going to be called 'Spectre'. I think 'Spectre' refers to the name of the imaginary criminal organisation that James Bond has to defeat in the film.

As 'Spectre' hasn't been released yet, I don't know exactly what it will be about. But I can guess that the hero, Bond, is going to be on a mission to save the world from an arch-criminal as usual. I'm sure it will be similar to most of the previous Bond films, with a plot line involving lots of twists and turns, and with Bond using his skills to defeat his nemesis in the end.

I first heard about this film when I was watching the news a couple of months ago, and since then I've seen the official trailer on TV. There have also been various articles in newspapers discussing the actors who have been cast to play supporting roles in the film. The James Bond films are always big news here in the UK, probably because Bond himself is an English character.

I'd like to see 'Spectre' at the cinema because I'm sure it will be full of action scenes and special effects, and I like the fact that Bond's missions always take place in spectacular locations in different parts of the world. Of course Bond films are totally unrealistic, you could even say ridiculous. But they're always fast, entertaining and fun, a bit like a roller-coaster ride!
